Your child has been diagnosed with autism. It is very easy to feel overwhelmed by all of the decisions:

"What should we do? Who should we see? Where should we go? What can we afford?"

"When first confronted with our 21-month year old sons Autism Spectrum diagnosis, one of the first health care professionals we were highly recommended to see was Bronwyn Sutton. I will never forget the first day she arrived at our home for our first appointment; we were in utter shock and pain, grieving and completely unaware of how we were going to come to terms with, let alone navigate the journey of Autism with our precious boy. Fortunately, Bronwyn brought with her that day a confident and kind presence, a no nonsense approach and clarity and understanding of all things ASD that to this day, somewhat further into our journey, no other health professional has come close to surpassing. She managed to help us through guidance, intervention and support, turn a very bleak looking path into a one that is to this day much brighter and hopeful"
